

About DC Rape Crisis Center

Since 1972, DC Rape Crisis Center has been making a significant contribution to the health, economic, social and cultural well-being of Washington, DC. Dedicated to creating a world free of sexual violence through conscience and action, DCRCC's call to action obliges us to us to build the capacity of the Washington, DC community to respond to survivors of sexual assault with compassion, dignity and respect, regardless of race, class, gender identity or expression, sexual orientation, immigration status, ability, age or religious affiliation. In addition to prevention activities, DC Rape Crisis Center programs ensure the provision of crisis intervention services for adult and child survivors of sexual assault –helping to eliminate the long term effects that rape can have on the well – being and health of an individual. For more information about DC Rape Crisis Center, please visit www.dcrcc.org.